Purely Academic: The College Bowl for High School

If anything could be said about television in the seventies, it would have to be said that this was a decade for a rebirth of the "golden oldies." Along with Mickey Mouse, You Bet Your Life, and many others, college bowl is coming back, except this time around it's for high schools instead of colleges.

The name of the game is "Purely Academic," a quick-paced game show matching the wits of teams from 13 Lynchburg area high schools. The game is divided into three rounds. In the first round, each team is given questions, going back and forth, from team to team. Three point values on these questions will be in relation to their relative difficulty. During this first round, questions will be of a general interest type. For the second and third rounds, there will be toss-up type questions with the team first buzzing in with the correct responses being awarded the points and an opportunity for extra bonus points. However, care must be exercised as a wrong buzz-in answer will mean a five point penalty. For these final rounds, questions will be based upon three areas of interest.

The program, sponsored by Lynchburg College and WLVA-TV will be shown each Sunday evening at 4 p.m., starting this Sun., Sept. 28.

The program will be of double elimination type, so that each team will appear on television at least two times.

The questions will be taken from a variety of sources. Let us hope it doesn't come too soon as farmers are still cutting tobacco.

Eleven attended the church training conference at Beulah Church in Lynchburg Tuesday night.

Joanne Elder returned home from the hospital on Tuesday morning.

A large crowd was out for the mid-week service.

Rev. Don Wagner was out on Sunday after being sick on Wednesday night and had a temperature of 103 on Thursday.

Miss Maggie Branch went to see a doctor at Appomattox twice last week.

A speedy recovery is wished the sick ones.

Joe Almond was at the mid-week service on Wednesday night after being sick last Sunday night.

Mrs. Bill Caldwell and Mrs. Glen Morris were in Lynchburg on Monday.

Twenty R.A.'s and three adults attended a R.A. meeting in Richmond on Saturday.

Rev. W. H. Elder was the guest speaker for the Homecoming at Central Church on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Morris and daughters attended the Homecoming at Trinity Methodist Church near Appomattox Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Aulden Roach and family and Mrs. Irna Roach, Rev. and Mrs. Don Wagner and Gary attended the Homecoming at Union Hill Church Sunday.

A number of Sunday School teachers and officers are planing to attend the conference at Eagle Eyrie Sept. 26-27.

Mrs. W. H. Elder and Patricia went to Charlottesville Saturday to see the former's aunt, Clara Dudley at the University Hospital who will receive treatments there.

State Mission Day of Prayer is Thursday at 7:30 p.m. You are invited to take a part.

Many are planning to attend "Harvest Day" at the Baptist Home for the Aged at Culpeper on Friday.

The Rocky Ridge Quilt makers Club will meet with Mrs. Elsie Reed on Thursday, 7:30 p.m.

ROCKS

SEPT. 22 - Temperatures in the low forties recently. It seemed that frost was not far away. Let us hope it doesn't come too soon as farmers are still cutting tobacco.

This week puts the teams from Appomattox County High School and E. C. Glass up in what looks to be stiff competition. The three special categories for this week are art, psychology, and special education.

Unlike the old College Bowl, only three members will represent each team on a given show, but all members of the four person team must play the show at least once.

Appomattox County High School will be represented by a team from the national Honor Society at the school. Team members include Sandy Chambers, Beverly Harvey, Jack Smith and Steve Cawthorn, shown above with sponsor, Mrs. Mary Gray Holland. These four students will be competing for a possible $16,000 in scholarships applicable toward education costs at Lynchburg College. Each member of the winning team will receive a $4,000 scholarship, $1,000 a year, renewable for four years at Lynchburg College. Each member of the runner-up team will receive $500 a year, renewable for four years.

The September 28 show will be taped tonight, the 26, at the WLVA studios in Lynchburg. With community support and backing, super school spirit, and the dedication of our sponsor, Mrs. Mary Grey Holland, the National Honor Society team will be looking for its first of what we hope will be many victorious appearances on "Purely Academic".

Stuart Farrar shared with me recently a copy of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Immigration Yearbook dated 1913.

It's a real revelation of where we have come in commercial agriculture.

* * *

One of the real concerns among plant breeders and many farmers is the lack of varietal diversity in our crops such as small grain, corn and sorghum. We still remember 1970 when Southerncorn blight took such a toll of our corn. This was the most devastating plant disease ever to hit the American farmer.

Farmers need to be aware of this problem and consider planting several varieties. However in many cases there may not be any significant differences. For example Arthur, Abe, and Oasis wheat all have the same or closely related parentage.

Participating In Phillippine Argicultural Program

Bill Butler, a Richmonder who operates three grocery stores in that area, recently purchased the Bill Childress farm near Vera.

The 267 acre farm has 205 open and Butler has 8 gilts, 1 boar, 56 Angus, 25 layers and 2 Gurnsey cows.

Butler is participating in the Phillippine Agricultural Training Program. This is a work study program under the auspices of the National 4-H Club Foundation. This is the second year this program has been active.

On July 21, Tomas Delena, age 26, and Avelino Bides, age 25, came to the Butler farm. Selection of persons to participate is keen among the Phillippine 4-Hers and their leaders. Both of these young men are 4-H leaders. Tomas has two children with 60 members that he works with. Avelino leads three clubs of 73 members. This year there were 125,000 applications for the agricultural training program and only 75 selected. Three of these 75 are in Virginia and all three in Appomattox County. (The other is on the John Wilson farm which will be featured later.) Last year 80 came to this country for training.

After being selected these 75 young people spent three weeks in a training program in the Phillippines on subjects such as farm equipment, swine management, plant propogation, poultry and vegetable production.

After arriving in Washington, D.C. they had a brief orientation program and then spent six weeks on a Delaware vegetable farm.

They will be on the Butler farm for 20 months. During this period of time they attend two 3-day seminars in Washington, D.C. After leaving Appomattox they will have three months University training at either Penn State University or Oregon State University. Their training in the U. S. will conclude with a three week seminar. Following their training here they have a commitment to share their knowledge for one year with their countrymen.

Both of these trainees have a high interest in vegetable and swine production.

Tomas' family farm consists of 14 acres and Avelino's farm has 12 acres. They grow rice, vegetables, tobacco, sugar cane and swine.

The Phillippine Islands have a population of 43 million people and the country consists of 7100 islands of which only 1,000 have names. A near tropic climate permits year round farming with no concern for frost. Rainfall averages 80 to 85 inches annually. Both trainees report that they use Caralao or water buffalo in their farming operation.

J. A. Smith, Extension Agent, reported that he was impressed with the seriousness of these young men and particularly with their courteous manners.

Homecoming Set At Providence

Following the morning message, a traditional picnic lunch will be served at the church. In the afternoon, there will be a special musical program featuring the "Highland Heights Quartet", the "Maysville Baptist Church Junior Choir", and "Ladies Duet" from Buckingham in addition to the Providence Baptist Church Trio.

The public is cordially invited to attend and share in the fellowship of the day.
